President's Message

First I want to say a big thank you to all the volunteers. Without your help, the library would not be open as much as it is—research would not be done—BMD indexes would not be compiled—etc. At the present rate the volunteers will have contributed over 2500 hours by the end of the year.

A reminder that membership renewals are due. If you downloaded the form from the AGS website, be sure it is marked as a renewal. When you fill it out, please check it and ensure that the right boxes are checked (the branch/branches you wish to belong to) and if you make a donation, make sure you indicate which branch you want it to go to.

Our annual International Dinner was held November 26th at the Sierra of Courtyard Terrace. This was a chance for us to get together and enjoy some fine food from different nationalities and talk about our genealogy.

The meetings in the coming year (2010) are as follows:

January 21, at 7:00 p.m.--A round table discussion of successes and brick walls.

February 18, at 7:00 p.m.--Our Annual General Meeting

The A.G.S. GenFair and AGM will be held in Medicine Hat, April 23 and 24, 2009. I hope that many of you will attend.

I will at this time wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. President, Doug McLeod

Muriel Jolliffe 1931-2009

We were saddened to hear of the death of Muriel Jolliffe. Born in London, England in 1931 and raised in Portsmouth. Muriel passed away at the age of 78 in Lethbridge on November 28, 2009. She was the loving wife of the late Ray Jolliffe and is survived by her two children Carol (Miles) Godlonton and Michael (Kelly Legris) Jolliffe, her sister Wendy Carson and her two grandchildren, Amanda (David) Hyde and Ryan Godlonton.

Muriel Jolliffe became a member of the Lethbridge Branch (AGS) in 1994. She took over indexing of the vital events (mostly obituaries) from the Lethbridge Herald in 1995, continuing until March 2009. Once Ray retired he assisted Muriel. This was definitely a partnership. Anyone who has seen these binders will agree that they are 'works of art'.

Local Historian Posting Past Yearbooks

If your high school memories are fading faster than the pages of your old school yearbooks, you might want to look up Bruce Haig.

Haig, a local historian and author of a multitude of books chronicling local events and people from years gone by, is making more recent history available on his website.

Drawing from his father's time on the schoolboard and his years of teaching, Haig has gathered yearbooks from a variety of schools dating back to the mid-1940s and has posted the pages on www.ourheritage.net.

"Lots of people have lost their yearbooks over the past 30-40 years; I've been collecting the yearbooks over the years. So I've been scanning them in for everyone to see. It's not that difficult," says Haig.

The project started when Haig, who has offered information on historical events and his own books for sale since 1995, decided it was time to clean out his basement of a variety of keepsakes.

Over the past month or so, he's posted 60-odd yearbooks from Lethbridge Collegiate Institute, Sir Winston Churchill, Hamilton Junior High School, Wilson Junior High, Lethbridge Junior High and even Galt and St. Michael's nursing schools. He also has reunion books from LCI and St. Joseph's High school.

"Instead of throwing them out, I thought I'd share them with everybody," he says. "Lots of people are interested in seeing these sorts of things from the past."

Haig will gladly accept donations of yearbooks from anyone willing to part with them and while Lethbridge is of special interest, he'll add yearbooks from across southwestern Alberta to his website.

Unfortunately, the books cannot be returned to the donor. Haig has to tear apart the yearbooks as individual pages have to be put in a double-sided scanner, 10 pages at a time on both sides. "That's the catch," he says.

While he acknowledges many people like to hold onto such memories, there are others who may be moving, cleaning out their home or just do not care about the past that he hopes may donate yearbooks.

The pages are posted to his website and categorized under school and the year. Visitors can click on each individual page for an expanded view, all free of charge.

Haig especially likes the reunion books. "They cover the people who come back for reunions. I like seeing how people have changed over the years."

Those interested in donating yearbooks can contact Haig at the Historical Research Centre, 1115 8th Avenue S., Lethbridge, AB, T1J 1P7 or

Place Names of Alberta The Land, People and Their Stories

A new multimedia website explores the history of naming in Alberta and provides a range of information about names of communities, geographical features, and special areas. The website allows users to discover the origins and meanings behind place names by situating them in their political, social, economic, and cultural context. The dynamic Alberta Geographical Place Names Database allows you to search about 12,000 entries. Visit website:

Genealogy Tidbits

When searching Ancestry.ca for relatives whose surnames start with Mc or Mac or similar prefixes – Van, etc., try leaving a space between the prefix and the main name, example – Mc (space) murchy may yield more hits. With so many sites using voluntary or offshore transcribers indexing is done on what people see written not necessarily logic.

http://www.genealogyintime.com/GenealogyResources/new_genealogy_records.html.

UK and Canada: Ancestry.ca has added more than 100,000 British and Canadian prisoner of war records of soldiers held by Germany in World War II. In addition, the UK Army Roll of Honour has also been added, which includes 170,000 records of all British Army personnel killed in action during World War II. Access is by subscription (Eastman's Online Genealogy Newsletter)

Check out <http://cemetery.canadagenweb.org/> there are lots of Canadian Cemetery indexes coming online for free – you might get lucky and find family and the cemetery may also be photographed.

Where to Look for More Recent Genealogical Records

It is almost 100 years since the last census taken in Canada was released excluding the 1916 Census for Western Canada. Obtaining BMD registration in Alberta can set you back $42.00 each and only if you meet their requirements as next of kin.

Here are some suggestions to consider when looking for those elusive ancestors! Although I mainly cite cemetery and obituaries, please don't forget to check the classified sections as well as the social news in newspapers for births and marriages (this note applies mainly to small town papers). Several genealogical groups are transcribing/indexing older papers and will make copies for a small fee as well; it pays to "surf the net" for these opportunities.

This is only sample of what's out there, use your GOOGLE SEARCH ENGINE to check for more. Records are being added on a daily basis.

CanadaGenWeb Cemetery Project

<http://cemetery.canadagenweb.org/>

CanadaGenWeb's Cemetery Project is part of the CanadaGenWeb Project which is a volunteer-run "non-profit" project to find and make genealogical records freely available. To learn more about CanadaGenWeb please visit our main website.

CanadaGenWeb's Cemetery Project was established in 2003 and debuted on the internet in 2004. Our goal was to find and list all known Canadian cemeteries. As we've grown we've added information to help genealogists find out more about each cemetery.

This database is one that has been built by contributions from visitors. We grow as you submit information and we'll continue to grow with your support.

We currently offer:

- A list of over 16,000 known cemeteries located in Canada (with your help we can add more!)
- The location of these cemeteries and the history of as many as possible.
- Links to online transcripts, indexes & photographs offered throughout CanadaGenWeb & elsewhere as known.
- Links to where you can purchase transcripts & indexes not offered online.
- Offers of lookups & links to lookups offered elsewhere as known.

The goals of this project are:

- To locate every cemetery in Canada (street address; Township; Lot & Concession; GPS)
- To provide information about every cemetery (date of first interment; whether closed, private or still accepting interments; etc.)
- To provide locations of cemetery transcripts, indexes and photos (links to those online; purchase information for those offline).
- To make the project as searchable as possible. Cemeteries will be searchable by name of cemetery; each province and territory will have a surname index; Indexes for transcripts are welcome to be added to the search as well.

Please Note: This project is classified as "in progress" –we do not yet have information on every Canadian cemetery, but with your help this can be accomplished. If you know of a cemetery not yet listed here please submit the information to the appropriate province/territory. Thanks!

PRDH: Tracing French Canadian Roots

Anyone trying to trace their French Canadian roots should definitely check out the University of Montreal's genealogy website known as PRDH (Research Program in Historical Demography).

This French Canadian academic website www.genealogie.umontreal.ca/en/leprdh.htm has painstakingly reconstructed the entire population of Quebec in the 1600s and 1700s from old parish records. To quote the website:

The project relies basically on exhaustive gathering of data from the parish registers of old Quebec. By systematic attribution of baptism, marriage, and burial certificates to the respective individuals—a “family reconstitution” made on the basis of names and family ties—people are identified and their biographies established.

The file for each individual gives the date and place of births, marriage(s), and deaths, as well as family and conjugal ties with other individuals.

This basic information is complemented by various socio-demographic characteristics drawn from documents: socio-professional status and occupation, ability to sign his or her name, place of residence, and, for immigrants, place of origin.

The PRDH site makes it relatively easy to trace both male and female lines all the way back to France since French custom was to record the maiden name of women on records even after marriage.

The amount of genealogy information on this website is simply astonishing. It is free to search the site but there is a charge to see complete records. Since this is an academic site, money raised from public genealogy inquiries goes towards advancing and improving the genealogy research. New Version of the Canadian Naturalization 1915-1932 Database Ottawa, July 22, 2009 – Library and Archives Canada (LAC) has announced the release of a new version of the Canadian Naturalization 1911-1932 online database. It now includes the names of 206,731 individuals who applied for and received status as naturalized Canadians from 1915 to 1932. With the help of a dedicated team of researchers, hosts Tim Green and Lisa Joyner guide people searching for lost loved ones through emotional journeys that will change their lives forever. The heartwarming new series started Monday, Nov. 23 (9:30-10:00 p.m. ET). Full-hour editions of the show will air Mondays from 9:00-10:00 p.m., ET.

Each episode of the television series is a one-hour, self-contained show full of moving moments and tears of joy, when mothers, fathers, daughters and sons who lost touch for decades are reunited. The show will begin with the emotional back stories of two different families in search of lost relatives. With minimal information, the “Find My Family” team will begin the difficult and frustrating process of sifting through archives and tracking down records until they uncover the missing links. Then Lisa Joyner will reach out to the newly-found family members and let them know that someone from their biological family has been looking for them. Tim Green will narrate each story as it unfolds and meet with the people who originated the search. The in-person reunions will take place at the “Family Tree.” A follow-up with each family will conclude each episode.

Find My Family is produced by RelativityReal and RDF USA. You can read more at <http://abc.go.com/shows/find-my-family>. (Posted by Dick Eastman December 2, 2009).

More Than 1.8 Million Native American Records Released on Footnote.com

Original records dating back to early 1700s become available on the Internet for the first time—Footnote.com announced the release of their interactive collection of historical records: the Native American collection.. Working together with the National Archives and Allen County Library, Footnote.com has created a unique collection that will help people discover new details about Native American history.

The Footnote Interactive Native American Collection features original historical documents including:

Ratified Indian Treaties—dating back to 1722
Indian Census Rolls – featuring personal information including age, place of residence and degree of Indian blood

The Guion Miller Roll – perhaps the most important source of Cherokee genealogical research.

Dawes Packets – containing original applications for tribal enrollments and other documents relating to the Five Civilized Tribes.

Footnote's Native American microsite creates an interactive environment where members can search, annotate and add comments to the original documents. Additionally, visitors can view pages for many of the Native American tribes that include historical events on a timeline and map, a photo gallery, stories and comments added by the community.

“Much like putting a puzzle together, Footnote.com brings pieces together in the form of historical documents to create a more vibrant picture of the events and people of the past,” says Justin Schroepfer, Marketing Director at Footnote.com. “Together with the online community we are discovering a side of history that you cannot find in text books.”

Footnote.com also provides a free service where visitors can create their own web pages for their Native American family. “Native Americans have a rich oral history,” explains Russ Wilding, CEO of Footnote.com. “We hope that the online community will use Footnote Pages to preserve these stories, which will help ensure that they do not become lost to future generations.”

Seeking Michigan--Death Records Available

The following announcement was written by the Michigan History Foundation, owners of the “Seeking Michigan” website.

The Michigan death records collection at Seeking Michigan, covering the years 1897 to 1920, is now largely complete. With the records added recently, there are now more than 960,000 certificates available for free at this site, meaning that the project is now 99% complete.

So what years and counties are now here at Seeking Michigan? This digital project is based on the Library's collection of microfilmed Michigan death records from 1897 – 1920. Of the 302 rolls of microfilm, only one has not yet been added to the site, this roll includes records from 1919 for Lenawee, Livingston, Luce, Mackinac, Macomb, Manistee, Marquette, Mason, Mecosta and Menominee Counties. Outside of these records there are a few additional problematic records that will be added in the near future. Again, this death records collection is now 99% complete.

The list below details what records are currently available; [incomplete] means that 1919 Lenawee County is not yet fully loaded, not that the whole run of counties listed is incomplete.

1897 – 1918

Alcona – Wexford

1919

Alcona – Lenawee [incomplete]

Midland – Wexford

1920

Alcona – Wexford

To summarize the years 1897–1918 and 1920 are now complete for the entire state. 1919 is also complete, except for the 10 counties listed above. Detroit and Wayne County are complete for the entire run of 1897 – 1920 to link directly to the death records collection on Seeking Michigan.

There are other collections online at Seeking Michigan but the death records are a very significant development for Michigan researchers. <http://seekingmichigan.org/discover-collection?collection=p129401coll7> (As reported in Eastman's Online Genealogy Newsletter)

US Civil War Roll of Honor 1861-1865

One of the largest and most complete Rolls of Honor for the US Civil War has been released by Familyrelatives.com. It is the first time that all 27 volumes have been made available online.

Familyrelatives.com continues with more data additions this month with over 276,000 Roll of Honor records for those soldiers who died in the defence of the Union during the American Civil War.

The “Names of the Soldiers Who Died in the Defence of the American Union – interred in the National Cemeteries” were recorded by the Quartermaster General's Office in 1866. In each case the original place of interment, the soldiers' name, rank, company, regiment, date of death, section of cemetery and the number of the grave are all detailed. In some instances the creed is provided together with a list simply referred to as “Unknowns”. Additional volumes refer to soldiers who died in prison pens – termed “Names of the Soldiers Who Died in the Defence of the American Union – Suffered martyrdom in the Prison Pens throughout the south”. Again the soldiers name, rank, company, regiment, date and cause of death are provided.

The Roll reminds us that the Civil War was a bitter conflict and one of the bloodiest and costliest in terms of the toll it took on both sides with an estimated 620,000 military deaths, two thirds of whom died by disease as well as an undetermined number of civilian casualties.

The Union Army consisted of a large number of immigrants including many ethnic groups. A million soldiers were native born Americans of British ancestry, half a million were of German ancestry. 210,000 African Americans of who half were freed men living in the north the remainder were slaves or had escaped slavery. A similar number were of Irish descent. Canadian, English, French, Dutch, Scandinavian as well as Italian, Jewish, Mexican, Polish, Native Americans and other nationalities numbering 2.2 million fought for the Union.

The legacy of the war meant the ending of slavery, restoring the Union and the role of federal government. The many social and political issues following the war shaped the reconstruction era which lasted many years. It was the defining event that shaped the future of the United States as we know it today. The collection includes the Final Disposition, four additional volumes listing the original places of burial from which some of the bodies of Deceased Union Soldiers and Prisoners of War have been removed and the various National Cemeteries in which they were finally interred.

The collection together with 650 million historic records is available to search online to all members and visitors by way of an annual subscription of only US $50.00 at www.familyrelatives.com (Published online by Familyrelatives.com)

British Library 19th Century British Newspapers

This project was completed in fall 2007, and 2 million pages of digitised newsprint from complete runs of 19th century local, regional and national British newspapers are now free to search. A further 1 million pages will be added in fall 2009.

There are millions of articles from 49 London, national and regional newspaper (1800-1900) titles.

Until now, researchers wanting to consult these newspapers have had to travel to the British Library to research this collection at Colindale, London, and search by turning pages or viewing microfilm.

Users can choose to limit their searches to specific newspapers or search through the entire collection.

This collection is all fully text searchable with keywords in context visible in the results list.

Use this website to:

Irish 1911 Census: All Thirty-two Counties are Now Online

All counties have been added to the National Archives of Ireland’s free 1911 census website. The 1901 and 1911 censuses are the only surviving full censuses of Ireland open to the public. Both censuses cover the entire island of Ireland. The 1911 census was taken on 2 April 1911.

Ireland’s census records are unusual in that the original household manuscript returns survive. These are the forms filled out and signed by the head of each household on census night. Most other countries only have enumerators’ books, where family details were transcribed by the person charged with collecting the census information. In Irish records, you can see your ancestor’s handwriting, assuming that he or she was the head of the household at the time.

By end-September, the National Archives of Ireland expects to be re-developing the site to include full transcription of all of the data on the household forms for 1911, including religion, occupation, relationship to head of family, literacy status, marital status, county or country of origin, Irish language proficiency, specified illnesses, and child survival information.

1901 Census material, with all data transcribed, will be launched between late 2009 and early 2010.

You will find the National Archives of Ireland’s 1911 census website at <http://www.census.nationalarchives.ie>.

Belgian Red Star Line Museum Looking for Emigrant Photographs, & Memorabilia

Between 1873 and 1934 the legendary shipping company Red Star Line transported more than two million passengers. Poor European emigrants in search of the American Dream, but also affluent passengers travelling for business or pleasure left for New York. They departed from the city of Antwerp (Belgium), where the port warehouses of the Red Star Line were situated.

To this day those Red Star Line warehouses are preserved. For many passengers they represented the last stop on the European mainland. It was there that, just before their departure, the emigrants travelling in third class underwent a medical examination and were disinfected, while clerks scrutinized their documents.

The Red Star Line buildings are protected monuments. They are part of the communal memory of innumerable new Americans. They had long been standing empty and were pleading for a new purpose. In the spring of 2012 the new Red Star Line Museum People on the Move will open its doors at this historic location. It will be a place of remembrance, experience, debate and research into international mobility, both past and present. The story of Red Star Line and its passengers will be brought to life once more.

Do you have any old Red Star Line items such as postcards, luggage, diaries or photos? Are there travel stories or objects preserved in the family archive? Maybe you too can contribute to the new museum collection. Send an e-mail to redstarline@stad.antwerpen.be or call (+32)3 206 03 50. Perhaps your family item will find its way into the future museum.
